Still ambitious despite economy

Developers join forces

BY JIM BAUMANN

BOYNE CITY - Michigan's economy still may be in a slump but that hasn't kept two local development groups from proceeding with ambitious plans for the Boyne City lakefront.

The two groups, Lake Associates and M.E.O.W., have recently signed an agreement to cooperate in developing lakefront property.

Lake Associates, headed by Rick and Dave Smith, are the developers of The Harborage, a 108-unit condominium and marina project now under construction on Front Street.

M.E.O.W is a group of four businessmen who own the six-acre property surrounding the railroad roundhouse between Water and Main Streets.

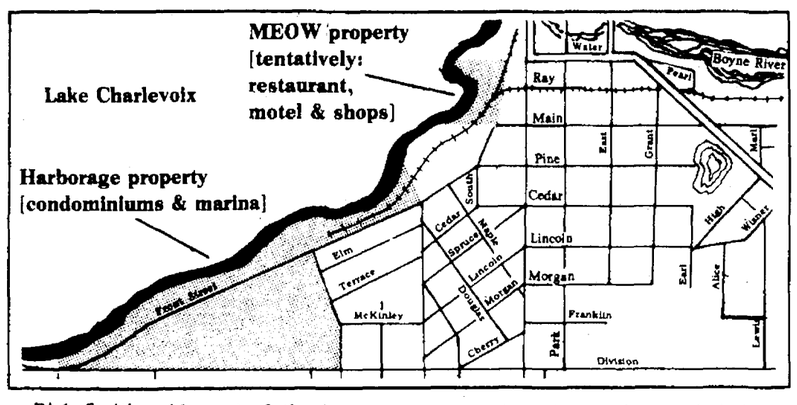
The owners, whose initials spell MEOW, are Jeff McFarlane of Ionia, Bill Ehinger of Rockford, Rex O'Connor of Ionia and Arch Wright of Boyne City.

Lake Associates have been pleasantly surprised by the demand for their Harborage condominiums. No units will be finished until this June, yet more than 75 people have paid $3,000 deposits on condos.

The prices of the condos range from $112,500 to $148,500 and they will be finished in stages over the next three years.

The condominiums are so popular that Lake Associates haven't even had to advertise them. Two years of controversy over a proposal to close Front Street apparently provided plenty of exposure—although it was costly and irritating to the developers at the time.



Rick Smith said most of the buyers look at their condos as investments. Real estate values will continue to climb, and additional income can be made from rentals. The homes can, of course, be used for vacations and eventual retirement.

The typical condo buyer, Smith said, is "relatively young, affluent, very busy and accustomed to city life. It's appealing to these people to buy a condominium because they have management and maintenance services available."

Although Lake Associates don't have anything but blueprints and sketches to show prospective buyers right now, the fact that they have built another area development has helped them. They are also the developers of Wildwood on Walloon, a 36-unit condo project on Walloon Lake.

Lake Associates' track record as developers is what led to the current agreement to work jointly with the MEOW group on developing the six-acre roundhouse property.

The MEOW group bought its property when the old Boyne City Railroad was auctioned in May, 1976. Lake Associates purchased an option on their Front Street property in 1978, and nothing was developed on either piece of property until the fall of 1980.

"We had to wait until The Harborage was approved and ready to go, before we developed our property," Wright said. "We could have jumped the gun and built some condos but that wouldn't have been as good as something that was complementary to their development."

Rick Smith adds that logic demanded that the two groups work together. "Even if we didn't have a formal relationship, we would have at least had a lot of communication so we wouldn't conflict and compete with each other."

"The responsibility is so awesome," Smith said. "When you put our property together with the MEOW property and the city park property, you have about a mile of lake frontage—downtown on one of the most beautiful lakes in the country. It's really exciting. I think it will be the most significant development Boyne City has ever had."

Tentative plans for the MEOW property haven't changed since they were reported by the Charlevoix County Press in May, 1980. The plans call for building a waterfront restaurant, motel and retail shops.

An Ann Arbor planning firm is now conducting a marketing study to determine whether the restaurant-motel-shops concept is feasible. The study is scheduled to be finished by April.

At that time, MEOW and Lake Associates will review the study and decide what type of formal arrangement should be set up between the two groups.

Lake Associates has expertise in designing and building, while MEOW owns the property and has ties to financial institutions. Wright is chairman of the board of directors of Lakewood Savings and Loan.

Wright said it is possible that construction of the restaurant-motel complex could start during 1981—"but financing takes time to arrange" and site plans must be approved by the Boyne City Commission and the Department of Natural Resources.

Thus, the two developments, when complete, might include condominiums, marina, restaurant, motel and shops.

If it all comes together, Wright said, "Boyne City has the potential to become a resort mecca superior to Petoskey, Harbor Springs and Charlevoix. We are closer to Boyne Mountain and closer to the downstate metropolitan areas."

He said the restaurant, motel and shops "would be non-competitive and ad strength to the business district. It would be a logical extension of the business district."

CHAR-EM: Budget cuts real; Reorganization proposed

BY TRISH WRIGHT

The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, currently contending with a state budget cut and increased costs that total $110,000, has another weighty problem with which to deal.

A bill has been introduced in the State Legislature to consolidate the Char-Em District with the Traverse Bay Intermediate District. The benefits of consolidation include computerized bookkeeping and accounting functions for the two districts as well as offering a greater variety of services and saving costs.

However, Jim Shepard, superintendent of the Char-Em Intermediate School District, argues that consolidation may not be in the best interest of the local students.

"Since we are a service agency, everything we do is for the students. We have to work with the local school superintendents and we do cooperate with surrounding intermediate districts to provide as many programs and services to the school as we can."

"There may be a lot of impetus to consolidate given by Senator (Kerry) Kammer, who introduced the bill," continues Shepard. "But, by consolidating the districts we will be much further away from our constituency."

Although an outpost for the intermediate district would continue to be located in Charlevoix (the site of the present intermediate school district headquarters), Pellston, the northernmost school in the proposed new district would be 100 miles away from the service center in Traverse City.

"One positive thing that may occur from consolidation might be the institution of another vocational education center. There is currently one in Petoskey and one in Traverse City. Another one may be added in the Mancelona or East Jordan area," says Shepard.

"But we will be losing direct contact with the people and their problems in this district. The services will be less personal as we get further away."

Char-Em's net budget deficit of $96,483 this year may not help in battling consolidation. "We have been in the borrowing position the last two or three years and we may have to borrow by the first of July," warns Shepard.

The staff and administrators at Char-Em are now using a reduced time approach to stretch dollars and avoid lay-offs. "Instead of having to lay-off five or six people, the staff agreed to forfeit 10 days' work. This will save us about $42,000," says Shepard.

Local school districts will probably be billed back for services at the end of the school year. "This was a precedent that was set this year. We billed the schools $3.20 per student. Since there are approximately 10,000 students in the district, that is about $32,000."

According to Shepard, the Char-Em Intermediate School District will be able to operate without added cuts if it does not experience subsequent state aid cuts.

"There has been some discussion about the June 8, 1981 school election. We may have to ask for an increase in millage. Our budget balance may be close by the end of June. I hope we are in the black, but we'll almost certainly be in a borrowing position by next year," adds Shepard.

Local school districts will suffer the loss of some services but most schools are prepared for them. "East Jordan has experienced major cuts because we're still on the state aid formula," says Superintendent Mel Rullman. "All services are important; they will probably be scaled back and we expect that next year will be no better than this year."

Boyne City Elementary School Principal Ed Snyder suggests that Char-Em's elimination of programs for 10 consecutive Mondays is not the most wise way to cut back.

"Most meetings and work is done with the students on Monday. The intermediate meetings are held on Friday, so it's a lost day for us. If they are really thinking of the students they should have chosen another day off," says Snyder.

"Services in the future are going to cost us more," says Vincent Olach, business manager for the Charlevoix School District. "We may be billed back but it will still be cheaper than hiring people directly."

Carl Moser, principal of the Boyne Falls Public School, agrees. "We don't know what the next three or four years may bring," he says. "We're on a balanced budget and we're just holding our own. But there will probably be an increased need for special services in the future."

Jim Shepard

Preschool testing at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District center is only one of the many services offered for students, teachers and parents in 12 local school districts.

What is an intermediate school district, anyway?

BY TRISH WRIGHT

There is a separate school district that supports the 12 local school districts in Charlevoix, Emmet and half of Antrim County. It is an intermediate school district that is a throwback to the days of one-room school houses and county superintendents.

As county schools disappeared the county superintendent found little to do and so was given the responsibility of administering special education and speech and hearing testing. Intermediate districts were born at this time.

The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District employs 63 people with an annual budget of $1.6 million dollars during the 1979-80 fiscal year. Most of this money comes from a 1.2 mills property tax.

This translates to a tax burden for the owner of a $50,000 house approximately $30 in property taxes and another $40 which is returned to the district from the state and federal government through public taxation.

What services is the taxpayer buying for this amount of money?

The Char-Em Intermediate School District is staffed with 32 support personnel—administrators, transporters and aides—plus about 31 teachers.

Special education supportive services are available from Char-Em in a number of areas.

Language, Speech and Hearing Services employ six people to diagnose and provide remedial therapy for speech and language impaired preschool and school-aged students.

Psychological Services include five people who evaluate students suspected

IS THERE REALLY A PURPOSE FOR A FUNERAL?

Many social and personal customs undergo changes and are criticized and obsolete and void of purpose. Funeral customs and directors have not escaped these critics.

However, these very criticisms have given strength to the tradition of funeral service, because it has caused the public to think seriously about the purpose of the funeral.

The funeral provides, of course, for the proper disposition of the body. It also provides a service of love and caring for the living, those who place value in life and pay respect to the dignity of man.

The funeral is generally a basic religious rite just as the baptism and the marriage ceremony. It provides a time for friends, neighbors and associates to express group support and compassion for the bereaved.

The funeral director is professionally trained to provide a compassionate and understanding service during the difficult emotional experience of death.

We are at your service, whenever needed.

Writing poems teaches grammar

Grammar. The mere mention of it makes some students want to run and hide. Yet English grammar is actually a fascinating diagram of the way we think!

English teachers realize how knowledge of grammar not only helps people write logically and clearly, but also helps them be more expressive.

It takes a long time, however, to teach children grammar. And another long time to teach them to apply it. Add to that, few young students see the need either to write usefully or read appreciatively. Partly because the process of learning grammar is set as a prerequisite.

Consequently, in some schools across the country, grammar is not taught. Instead, the development of language use is taught through example—lots of reading of good books; lots of writing and speaking, and pointing out of things.

Little books—with real book-binding—were put together this winter by Title I students in the elementary school. The books contained poems written by the children. Not nouns, underlined and arrows from adjectives and so on. Poems!

Poems are windows of awareness. The poet becomes strongly aware in some way and eventually the reader becomes aware also. So writing poems is a natural way to develop language skill. Here is a poem from the children's book:

Our Schools

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

Winter
Cold, snow
Snowing, sledding, skiing
Building snow forts
Cold season

by Paul Haney,
4th grade, Mr. Healey

Few of the poems rhyme. Rhyming is only one means to creating awareness. Anyway, asking the children for rhyming would have diverted them from the point of the lesson.

The point was to create awareness by naming something, giving some of its characteristics, showing what it can do (or what can be done to it), and tying the poem together by repeating the subject at the end but in other words.

Grammarians, and even non-grammarians, can see the child has worked successfully with a noun, its adjectives, participial phrase, and a synonym noun.

Let's put it another way! The child has learned a way of putting awareness into words. That's the great thing, after all, in teaching English.

This poem pattern is called a cinquain. In a way it becomes a kind of game to write one, but the process also probes for awareness and for language development.

Here are two more:

Presents

Surprising, opening, getting
They are fun
Gifts

by Tom LaVake,
5th grade, Mrs. Rothenberger

It is a delightful little book. Each student made one, doing the bookbinding as well as contributing a poem.

The students who are in the Title I program are receiving help because they are a grade or so behind where they're supposed to be in reading. Arline Rullman, who administers the program, says the children are referred for this help by their teachers. It has been in operation since Title I was set up, 15 years ago.

Providing special services

of needing special education.

There are four social workers. Three teacher consultants diagnose learning disabilities. Any student who is hospitalized or homebound for more than two weeks may receive help from the homebound teacher.

A curriculum resource consultant is responsible for the development of techniques and materials for use by classroom teachers with handicapped students.

Two full-time and one half-time preschool consultants work in the homes of children up to the age of three who are handicapped. The Developmental Needs Program employs two people who work with classroom programming for the severely handicapped.

There are five people responsible for the Trainable Programs. These are designed for the handicapped students who cannot profit from regular school.

A special education and vocational education consultant assists secondary level students who are eligible for special education services in securing job placements and developing vocational training.

A special education teacher assists severely handicapped students in obtaining pre-vocational training and on-the-job training.

The Occupational Therapy Service division employs one person to provide therapy to special education students qualifying for services.

The Char-Em Intermediate School District also provides its school districts with general administrative assistance and vocational career education assistance.

The Alternative Education Program for Pregnant Persons offers alternatives for a pregnant student to continue her education during pregnancy. According to Intermediate School District Superintendent Jim Shepard, approximately 50 pregnant students go through this program in one year.

Char-Em provides a media center for its 12 school districts that includes $500,000 worth of instructional materials. "We ship about 10,000 items out of this center in a year," says Shepard.

"We couldn't afford a media center on our own," says Vincent Olach, business manager for the Charlevoix Public School District. "The cost would be prohibitive. By having an intermediate school district we're reducing our cost per student."

According to Olach, the Charlevoix Public Schools would need another seven or eight mills to get the same services. "Rather than duplicating the services all the school districts pay part of the total cost of services. It's a coordination of programming."

"Every small district depends on the intermediate school district for special services," said Carl Moser, principal of the Boyne Falls School.

"We wish there were more services available because we are seeing a definite need for their services now and for the future," Moser said. "I think the intermediate school district is frustrated by their lack of funds and would like to provide full service for districts. They can't, so they split up into teams and make regular visits.

"Of course we would like to see more of them but there is only so much of the pie to go around and each district is looking out for its own students."

Although the services offered by the Char-Em Intermediate School District are deemed necessary by local school districts there has been some criticism. "We are working with the team better this year but we had some pressure and problems last year," Boyne City Elementary School Principal Ed Snyder said.

"I think local school districts should have their own speech programs and social workers. But in the case of psychologists and occupational therapists, there is a lower incidence of need, so they would need to be farmed out," he said.

According to Snyder, the Char-Em teams do not appear at the school often enough and there seems to be wasted time. "As the length of time increases between their visits it becomes harder to get the children into special education and do anything positive with them."

Need money for college?

According to Glenn Irwin, counselor at Boyne City High School, there is a way to pay for a college, vocational, or technical school education and, he will tell parents about it at a free financial aid workshop on Monday, Jan. 26 at 7:30 in the Boyne City High School Media Center.

The workshop should help parents of seniors understand how financial aid works and what steps to take right now to apply for assistance from many different sources.

Boyne growth came slow but it was worth the wait

With recent economic news mostly so dismal, it is encouraging to learn that a well-planned multi-million dollar lakefront development is moving full steam ahead in Boyne City (See story, page one).

Actually, there are two separate developments on separate pieces of property.

Construction has already started on The Harborage, a condominium and marina project. Closer to downtown is another development still in the planning stages, tentatively slated for a restaurant, motel and shops.

When finished, these two developments could represent an investment of some $20-million in the community.

That is quite a vivid demonstration of the strength and vitality of our area. It makes us bullish on our area.

Let's count our blessings: jobs will be created, tax base will be broadened, existing businesses will be strengthened, new businesses will be formed..

Spinoff jobs and business will even be created. People who buy $130,000 condominiums as second homes are people who might eventually decide they'd like to live in God's Country year-round. They'll find a way.

But we're not looking at this new development strictly with dollar signs in our eyes. The influx of people and dollars will help make the community more diversified and just plain fun. More services will be available.

Our lakefront won't be cluttered with helter-skelter slipshod development. The two developers are working together to complement each other. Each is planned with the other in mind. Both seem to be in line with the city's 20-year master plan for future growth.

Editorial

Growth has come a bit slower to Boyne City than to some of the more glamorous "Gold Coast" communities, but it seems to us that it was well worth waiting for. We'll pass on the fast food joints and gaudy strip development.

Zoning and environmental laws are more strict now than a decade ago. Aesthetics are more important. People realize that they can and should have more of a voice in how their communities grow—so the growth is orderly and coordinated.

The large new developments that are now starting will surely create new development pressures around the Boyne City area. It will be a continuing challenge for the governments of the city and surrounding townships to deal with new growth in a sensible manner.

Field trip becomes a circus

To the citizens of East Jordan,

Isn't it interesting that the East Jordan School Board would like to have you think that the difficulty over the fourth grade trip to the Shrine Circus in Grand Rapids is due to the fourth grade teachers and the no contract, no extra hours position?

When in reality, it was decided in the spring of 1980 that the next fourth grade class would not be attending because no funds would be available to cover transportation costs for field trips.

Isn't it interesting that once funds were raised by the fourth grade students and teachers for a specific educational field trip to the environmental camp that the school board countermanded and usurped those funds for the fun trip to the circus?

Isn't it interesting that when the teachers objected to those funds being used for a project which was not consistent with the initial goal, that the school board overruled the objection and barred the teachers from the planning meeting for a trip to the circus with all fourth grade students, held by the principal?

Is this consistent with the values you expect from your educational system?

Doesn't this bother you?

East Jordan Education Assoc.
Rodger Ransom, President

Editor's note: Regarding the second paragraph, Elementary School Principal Don Peters said he knew of no decision in the spring of 1980 that the circus field trip would not be taken. The Shriners told him that they would no longer be able to pay transportation costs for the annual trip. School policy is that most classes taking field trips must raise money to pay their own expenses, including transportation. Peters said he discussed the circus trip informally in October, 1980, with fourth grade teacher Bruce Healey, and both agreed that they would probably make the trip again if the teachers' contract were settled.

Peters also refutes the third paragraph. Money is raised for all fourth grade projects, not for specific trips, he said. About $1,400 has already been raised, and only about $600 will be needed for the circus trip. The extra money and any more that is raised later will pay for the environmental camp trip and a Fort Michilimackinac Trip in the spring.

The school board did not bar the teachers from the planning meeting for the circus trip, Peters said. The teachers felt they should not chaperone the trip since their contract still isn't settled. The school board authorized Peters to plan the trip anyway, using parent chaperones.

Peters called an organizational meeting with all fourth graders in the gymnasium. "I told the three teachers, 'You can stay for the meeting if you would like to help organize the trip. Otherwise, you are excused'." The teachers did not respond and they left the meeting, Peters said.

Kids have 'fine basic values'

Editor,

They say that our present generation of young people leaves a lot to be desired. I disagree!

We lost our son, Mike Lillis, a year ago and on the anniversary of his death, the flag at the Boyne City High School was at half mast in his memory.

Later that evening, Jon Bogema, senior class president, came over to our home and said that Mike was so popular with the kids, that they wanted to pay him tribute.

This kind and thoughtful consideration was not that of a group of uncaring kids, but rather that of love and true friendship.

No, our children are not without feeling. When you get down to the nitty gritty, you will find some very fine basic values.

Thanks, kids, you have made me a very proud mother.

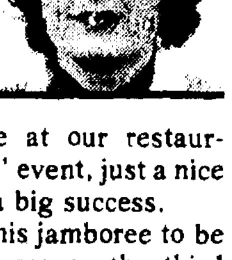
Old ideas can lure new tourists



Kathy Johnson

In 1980 Charles Dudley Warner said "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it."

Here in Charlevoix County everybody is talking about tourists, BUT there are some people doing something about it. And we need more!

In East Jordan last weekend the Original Michigan Fiddlers' Association hosted a Fiddlers' Jamboree in the afternoon and old-fashioned square and round dancing at night. This was a first for East Jordan and some 350 to 450 people turned out for each of the events.

Parking was at a premium in East Jordan, and it was sure nice to see. Some 20 fiddlers came from all over Michigan including Port Huron, Lansing and Ypsilanti.

Others came to hear the fiddlers and dance to the music. Many of these people stayed in area motels, bought gas from us and ate at our restaurants. It wasn't a "big" event, just a nice one that turned into a big success.

Plans now are for this jamboree to be repeated again next year on the third weekend in January. That's great.

Thanks are to be extended to Bill Stevens with the fiddlers' association and Pat Berlo, East Jordan's recreation directors for making this a success.

In Boyne City, a little reminiscence at a winter festival meeting turned a fishing contest and bonfire into a revival of Smeltania.

When Bill Underhill, Butch Erber, Nord Schroeder, Bob Hammontree Jr. and Mark Behling started talking about the Smeltania that "was"...one thing led to another and they ended up talking about the Smeltania that "could be."

Thanks to an idea (not a new one) that ran wild, Smeltania is rising from the ice once again. Coming with it will be a tree lined avenue on the ice, a mayor, sheriff, food, fun, fishing and...hopefully...tourists.

Other residents in the county may have ideas and suggestions for ways to encourage tourism in our beautiful area. But an idea unshared will wither and die.

Someone in Boyne Falls once had an idea that became an annual event from which the entire county benefits. And it's fun.

Let's talk up those ideas. Share them. Maybe your idea isn't the perfect one...maybe it's just an ice fishing contest. But out of that contest may grow Smeltania. Or maybe you're just fiddling around...and that may become an annual event in East Jordan.

Winter elbows--hazards of winter

Marshall Sayles

One of the side effects caused by not spending the winter in Florida:

* * * * *

What's the matter with your elbows?

Maybe I've caught something that attacks highly intelligent men.

It's the winter. Cold weather and low humidity are rough on elbows. Just look how hard and wrinkled they are. If we had gone to Florida instead of staying in Boyne City this winter you wouldn't have elbows like that. Warm weather would have prevented it.

Nobody will notice if I keep them covered.

Hang on to them. I'll get the hand lotion.

Hand lotion?

Yes. It will soothe them and make them feel better.

You are not putting hand lotion on my elbows.

Now, quit fussing. It will ease the soreness.

Give me that bottle. Where does it say it can be used on elbows?

It doesn't. It's something I found out.

Another one of your old wive's remedies.

Hush up. Now, roll up your sleeve again.

I will not. The last time I rolled up my sleeve for a woman she gave me a Swine Flu shot. Remember how I ate like a pig after that?

Stop that. Let me see your elbow.

I never thought you'd develop a thing for elbows. Besides, you saw them once. The mystery should be gone by now.

Quit stalling and roll up your sleeve.

Supposing someone were to come in. Normal husbands do not let their wives put hand lotion on their elbows. It's embarrassing. Oh, that stuff is cold.

Stop acting like a baby.

If you have been paying attention, you will notice that I'm having a difficult time adjusting my mind to all this.

Smeltania: A city on ice revived

BY TRISH WRIGHT

Pull up a campstool, bait your hook and listen up, for there is a revival going on to celebrate the return of Osmerus Mordax. This slender fellow in the lake is an old salt that first showed his scales in the 1930's and has returned en masse.

His first appearance was timely. The people of Boyne City were pulling down their earflaps and tightening their belts for the long winter months ahead when this tiny fish, no more than six or eight inches long, came to stock their impoverished pantries.

What happened in the 1930's and 40's was more than a fish story. Osmerus Mordax, commonly known as an Atlantic smelt, had made its way from Crystal Lake, where it had been stocked, to just offshore Boyne City.

Smelt were welcome guests. Boyne's citizenry existed on summer tourism and the Howes Leather Company Tannery. America was just coming out of The Depression, so it was only natural that alternative sources of income were sought to make ends meet.

Boyne City solved its economic problem by exploring the frozen frontier of Lake Charlevoix and moving small wooden sheds out onto the ice. It wasn't long before a community sprang up about one mile west of the city. This little town of up to 300 inhabitants became Smeltania, a city on ice.

Bill Underhill, who from 1946 to 1950 rented shanties complete with bait, heat and lights, remembers Smeltania's 20 year life span. "It was like living in an apartment," says Underhill. "Everyone was borrowing eggs from everyone else and everyone was broke.

"One smelt fetched one penny in those days and the average catch was about 100 smelt a night. No smelt fisherman made his fortune in Smeltania. However, the smelt fishing industry did help fill the stomachs of the 2,800 people living in Boyne City.

"It's a good sign of the times when you see the number of shanties out on the lake," noted Underhill. The smelt have returned to Boyne at a time when Michigan has the highest unemployment rate in the nation. The reestablishment of Smeltania may indicate that times are tough.

But it's the spirit of Smeltania that is catching. Boyne City's Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring an ice fishing contest in Smeltania during the city's Winter Festival from Jan. 30 through Feb. 1.

Bill Underhill has been elected Mayor of Smeltania and another Boyne City resident, Nord Schroeder, has been elected Smeltania's chief of police. In March of 1940, Collier's magazine reported Smeltania to have a city government that was proud of its fishing village but one that didn't take itself too seriously.

The magazine wrote: "The people of Boyne City laugh a bit at Smeltania and they kid Mayor Smith and City Manager Wild Bill Schaller and Police Chief Ed Duell and his assistants Billy Hamilton and the aptly named Philo Wakeford. But actually Boyne City is mighty proud of Smeltania. At least half of the citizens of Smeltania support themselves and their families entirely by fishing through the ice. Relief, charity—these are humiliating words to the people of rugged Michigan."

"No one had any money," explains Underhill, "but everything looked different out there. We all needed something to look forward to, so there were lots of good times."

Smeltania seemed to bring out the best in people. "It was a very interesting time for me," says Underhill. I had hardly been as far as Boyne Falls in those days and by meeting all the people who came to fish, I learned that there was very little bad in them."

According to the February, 1948, issue of Holiday magazine, thousands of people came to Smeltania after two large national magazines and a newspaper syndicate gave Smeltania's story to the nation.

"Quentin Reynolds, magazine writer, was made commissioner of streets. Tom Harmon fished in Smeltania in 1941. Harmon's name was magic in the Midwest then—after all, people said, he's a better football player than Red Grange. He was good publicity."

The shanties were usually big enough to accomodate two people with two lines apiece. Some of the larger shacks could hold four people. The shanties were lighted by automobile batteries and they were heated by gas or woodburning stoves. "I never had a shanty sink or burn," says Underhill.

"Some of the shanties were so close together you could hardly get supplies through. It all depended on where the fish were biting. When someone left his shanty, he would usually lock the door if he had a good catch." Although there was a friendly relationship among the Smeltanians, no one wanted to give away any secrets.

Small minnows were used to bait the fish. Underhill, who sold bait, says, "Once I had a problem getting bait. The smelt had consumed a lot of what I had and it was necessary for me to get bait from Muskegon."

"Bill Smith first bought the fish, and then I did. We could ship fish out at 2 p.m. and they would arrive in Dayton or Cincinnati by the following afternoon. They were dried on newspaper for about half an hour and then we boxed and shipped the whole dressed fish. There were about 20 to a pound and so for 20 cents you could get a lot of nutrition," Underhill recalled.

The fishing was better at night than during the daylight hours. So late into the night and early morning it was possible to swap some freshly caught smelt for fried smelt, coffee and sandwiches in the Trading Post. Mayor Bill Smith's own shack was dubbed City Hall and The Dilworth Hotel boasted an eight holer for use by friends of the management.

Preparing smelt for consumption was as easy as a flip of the spatula. Frying in deep butter, a minute per side, and down the hatch, bones and all, was the quickest way to appreciate smelt. Underhill sold a smelt dip that consisted of pancake mix, powdered eggs and cracker crumbs mixed with a little water.

"The fish died off around 1953," says Underhill. "It's typical that salt water fish will periodically die off." Local fishermen reasoned that the smelt's disappearance was due to starvation. The smelt died off as a result of little vegetation that kept the mainstay of their diet, minnows, alive. Some scientists believed that a mysterious blight caused the fish to die.

But the winter of 1980-81 marks the return of the smelt and Smeltania. Approximately 35 shanties are presently on the ice and according to Kate Schafer, Boyne City Chamber of Commerce manager, 100 shanties are expected in Smeltania for the Winter Festival.

It may be worth your while to walk the Christmas tree lined path to Smeltania that begins underneath the banner reading "Welcome to Smeltania...City On Ice.

Fishing contest

Sure to catch more than fish

BY KATHY JOHNSON

For the true fisherman, a fishing contest will bring out more than a bunch of fish. Every fisherman has his favorite fish story and some are more than just a little fishy.

Recently Boyne City residents Pat Mitchell and Phil Johnson were at a shanty on Lake Charlevoix doing a little smelt fishing. They got ready to leave. Mitchell got his snowmobile started while Johnson tried to lock the shanty.

Mitchell offered to help with the lock and got off the snowmobile. But the idle on the snowmobile was set a little too high. While they were getting the lock shut the snowmobile took off...toward Charlevoix.

Johnson said they looked up just as the snowmobile took off. Mitchell took off running after it with Johnson shouting advice. Then the snowmobile hit a snow drift and headed toward Lake Shore Drive, then another drift and headed back toward them.

Just before it got to them it changed directions again and headed toward Syfert's Marina. When it finally came to a stop it was nearly to the marina.

Johnson, known throughout the North for his wisdom, said, "You know, I think I'd set that idle down."

Area residents and visitors will have an opportunity to participate in fish stories and a fishing contest during the Boyne City Winter Festival, Jan. 30 through Feb. 1.

The Boyne City Area Chamber of Commerce and the Boyne Area Jaycees are sponsoring a smelt, trout, and perch fishing contest throughout the weekend. Weight will determine the winner in each category. (The weight of the fish, that is!)

For those interested, the rules state that the fish must be caught on Lake Charlevoix east of Horton Bay and Whiting Park. The fish must be weighed at official weigh stations on the ice or at Behling's Little Cub Market.

Fish must be weighed after 10 a.m. Jan. 30 or before 4 p.m. Feb. 1. The winners of each category will receive $100. There is a $2 entry fee and the fee and the entry form should be submitted to the Chamber of Commerce.

So get your shanty and make a move to Smeltania. Get your lines and get ready. You may be a winner. And if you don't get the biggest fish, you may yet come up with the best "line."

Back in 1940 the then mayor of Smeltania, Bill Smith, told a story to Collier's magazine about a car that went through the ice on the lake.

Supposedly the day after it went down the fishermen looked in the hole and the car was still running and was going in a circle. So they got some lines on it, pulled it up and the rumble seat was full of smelt—four bushels.

Now that's a "smelty" story!

COMPARISON SHOPPING

When a person buys a car, he usually shops around, comparing makes, models, dealers, and above all, prices. Most homes are bought the same way; that's why Realtors have all those thick books with sheets showing photos, descriptions, and prices of homes for sale. Prospective home buyers look through these books and decide which ones seem to fit their needs and wants; when they find something that interests them, they'll go out and look at it.

People who try to sell their own homes are limited in this respect. They can't, for example, compare the prices they're asking with the prices of HUNDREDS of other seemly similar homes. The price MIGHT be very fair—possibly lower than others—but how is the prospect going to know this if he can't compare it with others?

This is another reason why a Realtor can do a better, faster, and more efficient job of selling your home. With his pricing knowledge, he can turn the technique of comparison shopping into a STRONG sales "tool!"

Sean Ryan to sing at BC Chamber dinner

BOYNE CITY - Folksinger Sean Ryan will be featured at the annual dinner of the Boyne City Area Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday, Feb. 24.

The dinner will be held at Boyne Mountain Lodge. Social hour begins at 6:30 p.m. with dinner at 7:30. Ryan will sing after dinner.

Ryan has been one of Northern Michigan's most popular entertainers since he moved to the area six years ago.

He played at Duffy's Country Inn near Harbor Springs until February, 1980, when he and Nolan Roe purchased the Homestead Inn near Boyne City.

They remodeled and enlarged the building, changed the name to Ryan's Public House and opened in April with Ryan providing the entertainment.

Ryan, who was born in Ireland, sings Irish and American ballads and folk songs, as well as his own compositions.

Tickets for the annual dinner are $17.50 per person and will be available soon at the Chamber office and from Chamber board members.

New board members for the Chamber will be introduced at the dinner.

Chamber members will be receiving ballots to elect three new board members from eight candidates: Ralph Gillett, certified public accountant; John Kircher, Boyne Mountain; Richard May, attorney; Tim Moody, Boyne City Lanes; Rick Smith, the Harborage; Lyssa Williams Truitt, the Depot; Dave Williamson, Dave Williamson Insurance; Steve Woodcock, First National Bank.

Granary is headquarters for Avalanche Ski Classic

BOYNE CITY - The Granary Restaurant has been established as the new race headquarters for the Avalanche Ski Classic.

Official race brochures list The Dilworth Hotel as the headquarters, but this location had to be changed because the hotel is closed for the winter.

The fourth annual cross-country ski race will be held at 12 noon on Saturday, Jan. 31, as part of the Boyne City Winter Festival.

Entries will be taken on the morning of the race, but those who enter by this Friday, Jan. 23, can save $4 on the registration fee.

The fee is $6 through Jan. 23 and $10 after that day. All race participants receive a souvenir Avalanche T-shirt and numbered racing bib.

The top three finishers in 24 racing divisions will also win gold, silver or bronze Olympic style medals.

Everyone who enters the race must check in between 8 and 10 a.m. at The Granary Restaurant. T-shirts, bibs and race information will be distributed. Late entries will also be accepted at this time.

A pre-race meeting will be held at 10:30, and transportation will then be provided to Avalanche Mountain, the site of the race.

The ski race is designed to appeal to both serious racers and recreational skiers. There are two separate races, a 10-kilometer (6.2 mile) event for racers and a five-kilometer (3.1 mile) race for recreational skiers.

Afterwards, racers return to The Granary for lunch, which is followed by an awards ceremony at 4 p.m.

The race is sponsored by the City of Boyne City, The Charlevoix County Press, Schafer's, The Granary Restaurant, Natural Light beer and First National Bank.

For entry forms, write the Avalanche Ski Classic, Boyne City Hall, 319 N. Lake Street, Boyne City, Michigan 49712.

Clergy get 'progressive'

The Boyne City Ministerial Association recently enjoyed an evening of fellowship and camaraderie. Trying to get to know each other a bit better, on Jan. 6, the local pastors invited their wives to join them in a progressive dinner. At 6 p.m., the 11 pastors and nine wives met at the Christ Lutheran Church parsonage.

They then moved to the Presbyterian pastor's home for salad. Father Dennis Stillwell then hosted the group for the main course.

The evening ended at the Free Methodist parsonage for dessert. The evening gave all a chance to get to know each other better as well as to allow their wives an opportunity to meet each other.

Future get-togethers are planned for the families of the local pastors.

An Evangelistic Workshop was held at the Boyne City Re-Organized Church of The Latter Day Saints on Friday and Saturday. Thirty people attended from the northern Michigan district. A slide presentation was given by John Wolff of Clare. On Sunday evening there was a talent show followed by a pie and ice cream social. Plans are being made for the upcoming "Witness Weekend" to be held March 27 and 28. Anyone that would like to be visited, please call Pastor Raymond Ecker at 535-2387.

Sayles: Hazards of winter

Will you shut up and hold still?

Madam, are you quite through with my elbows?

There. Now, the next time you want your elbows done you can do them yourself.

In the restaurant the next morning my friend noticed that something had fertilized my usual grouch, making it larger than ever.

"What's got you buzzing this morning?" he asked.

"Oh, it's my wife," I said. "Just because we didn't go to Florida this winter she did my elbows with hand lotion."

He didn't sympathize at all. He just sat there warming his hands on his coffee cup, staring at me.

Damn, I hate stuff like that.

Skillet chicken - 'It just happened'

Cooking Yesterday & Today

with Bea Smith

Sometimes a favorite recipe just happens. You add something different than you used before and there you have it. It is just right and it is special.

This happened recently when I picked up Spanish style tomato sauce at the store, thinking it was regular canned tomatoes, for a favorite way that I fix chicken.

This dish is especially good for those who have to count calories and cut down on cholesterol. It's even better if you remove all the skin and fat from the chicken—only about 210 calories per serving.

SKILLET CHICKEN

2 chicken breasts split or 1 broiler fryer cut up.
2 tablespoons corn oil or a no cholesterol margarine.
1 - 14 oz. can of Spanish style tomato sauce. This makes the difference.
1 teaspoon of dried dillweed, be generous here.
2 cloves of garlic cut very fine.
Salt and pepper to taste.

In large skillet or electric fry pan brown chicken in margarine or oil. It browns beautifully even with the skin removed. Add the tomato sauce, dill and garlic. Go easy on the salt, as there is some salt in the sauce.

Bring to a boil, reduce heat, cover and cook until chicken is fork-tender.

Serve this with fluffy rice Add a tossed salad with low calorie dressing and you have a meal even your friends on a diet will enjoy.

EJ couple attends inauguration

Donald and Catherine Roberts of East Jordan left Sunday to attend the Presidential Inauguration in Washington, D. C. The Roberts are the guests of Frances and Marie Roberts, former East Jordan residents who now live in Lapeer.

Plans are for the two couples, and Marie Shoemacker of Detroit, to combine sightseeing in Washington with the inaugural events. While in Washington they will also attend the Michigan Ball.

The Roberts will return home on Thursday.

Youth group starts fund drive

A group of area young people will be asking for donations to Youth For Christ/Campus Life during the next two weeks in Boyne City, East Jordan and Boyne Falls.

Randy Kruzel, a Campus Life staff member from Boyne City, said the group wants the public to know they really are who they say they are.

In the past, non-local religious groups such as "Moonies" have solicited contributions and caused confusion among area residents as to who was really the recipient.

YFC/Campus Life is a legitimate group which sponsors school programs, trips, parties and has a regional office located in Petoskey.

AN ORDINANCE TO PERMIT, REGULATE AND CONTROL, IN THE INTEREST OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH, SAFETY AND WELFARE, OUTDOOR GATHERINGS OF PERSONS IN EXCESS OF 500 IN NUMBER.

Section 1. Preamble

The Board of South Arm Township finds and declares that the interests of public health, safety and welfare of the citizens of South Arm Township require the regulation, licensing and control of assemblages of large numbers of people in excess of those normally drawing upon the health, sanitation, fire, police, transportation, utility and other public services regularly provided in this township.

Section 2. Definitions

a. "Outdoor Assembly" hereinafter referred to as "assembly," means any event attended by more than 500 attendants, all or any part of which includes a theatrical exhibition, public show, display, entertainment, amusement or other exhibition, including, but not limited to musical festivals, rock festivals, peace festivals or similar gatherings, but does not mean:

1. an event which is conducted or sponsored by a governmental unit or agency on publicly owned land or property; or

Devils keep their cool in close games

EAST JORDAN - The Red Devil basketball team is showing an uncanny ability to keep cool in close games.

In six games decided by eight points or less, the Devils have won five of them. A little bad luck, a few mis-timed slip-ups and they could have been a .500 ball club right now.

Instead, they are 8-2 and their 5-1 loop record was tops in the Ski Valley League as of last Friday.

Last week, East Jordan beat Central Lake by two points in overtime and beat Mancelona by three points on the road. They came from behind to win both games.

Coach Bill Chase said his squad seems to be getting used to tight games. "We've had so many close games, I think we're a little better under pressure," he said.

"Our kids didn't get rattled. It doesn't bother them to play all these close games."

The Devils will have the chance to avenge one of their two losses this Friday at Bellaire. The Eagles whipped the Devils 49-47 on Dec. 12 in East Jordan.

Chase has more confidence in his reserves now, and he thinks that will help in the rematch. "The last time we played was just our second game of the season and I might not have substituted enough. Our starters got tired," he said.

Players to watch at Bellaire are Eric Stilwell, George Mason and Ron Olm, all averaging between 11 and 14 points a game. Mason, the Eagles' 6-3 center, is probably the leading rebounder in the league, Chase said.

Del Ingalls is still leading the Devils in scoring, and his 16.5 average is tied for second in the league.

At Mancelona Friday, East Jordan trailed all the way and stormed back from eight points behind with five minutes left to play. A 17-6 advantage was needed in the fourth quarter to eke out a 51-48 decision.

Ingalls, Todd Root and Randy Morris led the scoring with 15, 14 and 10 points, respectively. Those three also had 14 of the 17 fourth quarter points. Other scoring included Mike Spence and Bill Spence with four each, Mike Brennan three, and Jeff Chanda with one.

A full court press held Central Lake to five points in the fourth quarter, which allowed East Jordan to rally for a 57-57 tie at the end of regulation time. They went on to win 65-63 in overtime.

Ingalls had 16 points and 13 rebounds to lead the Devils in both departments. Morris had 15, Mike Spence 10, Root and Bill Spence six, Tom Peters and Doug Peck four, and Todd Ingalls two points. Root also grabbed 11 rebounds.

Boyne's toughest game? It's coming on Tuesday

BOYNE CITY - The toughest game on the schedule awaits the Rambler basketball team next Tuesday.

The league-leading Cheboygan Chiefs will be hosting Boyne City. The Chiefs are 8-1 this winter and 6-1 in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference. The only blemish on their record is a one-point loss at Petoskey.

Boyne City has momentum, however, with a seven game winning streak and an 8-2 record. The Ramblers are 5-2 in the conference.

Cheboygan is currently ranked 16th in the Class B state rankings by United Press International. A Boyne City victory would almost certainly vault the Ramblers into the top 20 in Class C.

Boyne City Coach Bob Taylor describes Cheboygan as "big and strong." It should be an interesting matchup with the fast-paced Ramblers, he said.

Four Chiefs are averaging in double figures: Kirk Taylor, Todd Precord, Chris Hudak and Ed Goggin.

Boyne stayed hot on the heels of Cheboygan and Petoskey in the conference race last Friday. The Ramblers came from behind to beat Grayling, 70-65.

The Vikings made their first five shots and jumped out to a 10-0 lead before the Ramblers found their composure. By halftime, they had narrowed the lead to 30-27 and then outscored Grayling 20-12 in the third quarter to go ahead, 47-42.

Grayling missed five opportunities for one-and-one free throws in the last four minutes of the game to help seal their own fate. The Vikings made only one free throw in six attempts during the game.

Brian Vroman played an outstanding game with 20 points and 25 rebounds. Larry Jarema had 17 points and eight rebounds, and John Tompkins came off the bench to score 16 points and grab 14 rebounds. Kerry Kruzel added 12 points and Jim Plachta had five points and seven rebounds.

Jarema played a big part in cooling down the Vikings. After Bill Roach got 12 points in the first quarter, Taylor switched Jarema to defend him and Roach had only five points the rest of the game.

Last Tuesday, Boyne swamped Elk Rapids, 80-48 in a non-conference game. Four Ramblers again hit double figures. Vroman had 21, Jarema 16, Plachta and Tompkins 10 and Daryl Tims six. Vroman also hauled down 16 rebounds, while Tompkins and Tims had 10 apiece.

Junior varsity

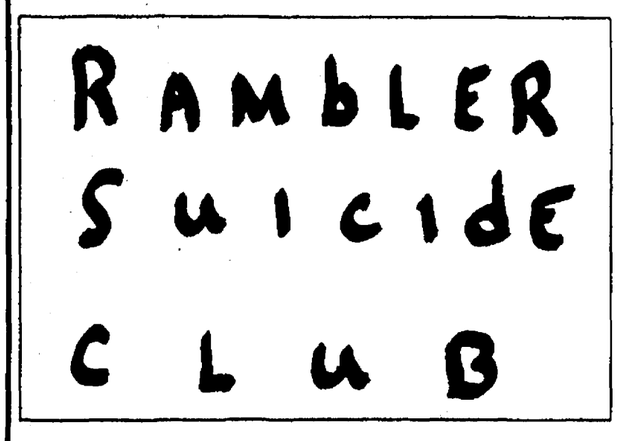
'Suicide Club' makes defense fun in BC



Here's what a "Rambler Suicide Club" card looks like. They're not fancy, but they are highly prized by steak-loving, defense-minded basketball players around Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY - Everybody knows it's fun to score points, but how do you get high school basketball players excited about playing defense?

Make a game out of it, of course...and offer a steak dinner as the prize!

That's Coach Bob Taylor's answer, anyway, and it seems to work.

Taylor gives out "Rambler Suicide Club" cards to team members who play exceptionally good defense. Any player who collects five suicide cards qualifies for a steak dinner.

To get a suicide card a player has to block a shot, dive for (and recover) a loose ball or be on the receiving end of a charging foul.

So far, senior forward Jim Plachta has seven suicide cards. He's the only one who has qualified for a steak dinner, and at the rate he is going, he might get three dinners before the season is over.

Other things are helping to promote defense, too. The cheerleaders and the Rambler fans are more defense-minded. Taylor has also changed the Charlevoix County Press "Player of the Week" award to "Defensive Player of the Week."

"Usually it's hard to promote defense," Taylor said, "but with these players it's easy, because they have such good attitudes."

"We've got the kind of kids who are made for playing man-to-man defense, too. They're quick, strong and smart."

"Sometimes we'll play a zone press, but our zone isn't a sagging defense—we're always double teaming. Any defense we play is aggressive."

The statistics verify that this emphasis on defense is paying off. The Ramblers are second in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference in defense, giving up 57.1 points per game. They are first in offensive point production with a 69 point average.

3 tied for lead in men's basketball

BOYNE CITY - Three teams are tied for first place with one game left in the second round of play in the Independent Basketball League.

Last week's sole leader, Boyne River Inn, was knocked off by Payton's Well Drilling, 77-68. BRI couldn't hold onto a 38-36 halftime lead, and Payton's climbed back into a first place tie.

Leading the winners were Terry Erber with 20 points and Julius Kowalske with 18. Kim Hocquard had 14 for BRI, followed by four players with 12 points each—Terry Elzinga, Rob Spencer, Keith Hausler and Mike Ruhlman.

Schafer's also jumped into first with an 89-82 win over Boyne City Lanes/Northwestern State Bank. Schafer's led by eight in the third quarter, fell nine points behind early in the fourth period and then rallied to win. Dean Hicks led Schafer's with 28 points, while Tom Beyer added 19. Jeff Kruzel scored 35 points in a losing cause.

Great Lakes Energy Systems went on a scoring spree to whip Country Star, 107-88. Al Looze hit 35 points and Hal Price 29 to lead the victory. Dave Peck scored 21 and Dave DeNise and Ken Gahn both had 18 for Country Star.

NEXT SUNDAY: Great Lakes vs. Bank/Lanes at 12:30 p.m., Country Star vs. Payton's at 1:45, BRI vs. Schafer's at 3.
